If We But Listen

In 2010, thirty-six Chilean miners were trapped 1000 feet below the earth facing certain death. A couple of factors kept them alive: first, they were extremely self-disciplined. While the food they had was intended for two days, they made it last for two weeks. Second, they knew they were getting help from above ground. Once communication was established, their hope to survive and live became increasingly more positive. Their joy and exhilaration was clear as each one was brought up safe and sound into the arms of their loved ones.

Jesus had been instructing a selection of improbable leaders for his church. They were unpolished and unrefined – hardly the kind of people CEOs of today would consider when selecting the top managers of their corporations. But God's ways are not our ways. Jesus had to tell his apostles of his impending death, something they could not understand and did not want to hear.

To prepare them for the bad news, Jesus takes three of them on a long hike. Mt. Tabor is about 15 kilometers from Nazareth. It must have taken them a day to walk to and climb up the 500 meters elevation that gives a breathtaking view of Jezreel valley. It is a perfect place where Jesus shows them who he really is in his transcendent glory. He assures the disciples that his suffering and death would not be in vain and that he would rise again on the third day.

The Lord Jesus doesn't abandon his people, and he treasures and rewards their fidelity. The story of Abraham in the First Reading (Genesis 12: 1-4) is a gentle reminder that God is always there to take care of his loved ones. St. Paul, in the Second Reading (2 Timothy 1: 8b-10) exhorts for March

For Victims of Abuse

We pray for those who have suffered harm from members of the Church; may they find within the Church herself a concrete response to their pain and suffering.

everyone to stand firm in the midst of trials and tribulations.

The transfiguration of Jesus on Mt. Tabor was a revelation of his divine nature, a dramatic way of showing his divine origin. At the Transfiguration, the disciples, his face became as bright as the sun and his clothes as white as light. At the same time, Moses and Elijah appeared to them conversing with Jesus. It was such a glorious and moving moment, that Peter just didn't know how to react. So, he suggested that they build a tent for Jesus, for Moses and Elijah on that mountain. They saw and realized who Jesus is.

After the Transfiguration, the disciples went back to their usual routine of ministering to the people and helping Jesus in his ministry, encountering trials, rejections, and all kinds of oppositions. But in the end, the memory of God the Father speaking and telling them to listen to His Son will never be forgotten.

So it is with us, as we go through our lives trying to follow Jesus daily. The words of our Father continue to be our source of comfort and strength as we try to live our faith in a world that sometimes does not conform to the desire of the world.

Grace and peace,

Father R C R A
